A MESSAGE OF APPRECIATION FROM CREIGHTON DRURY, CEO OF PARTNERSHIP TO END ADDICTION

It is with deep gratitude and appreciation that I present to you Partnership to End Addiction's 2022 Annual Report. Your dedication to our shared mission continues to be the driving force behind our work to bring an end to the addiction crisis in our nation and ensure more young people live healthy, addiction-free lives.

Each generous act you've offered – whether it is leveraging our free educational resources and support services or bolstering our efforts by supporting the Partnership financially – ensures that no family is left to navigate the complexities of addiction alone. So, from the bottom of my heart, and on behalf of every staff member at the Partnership and every family to whom you've directly helped, thank you!

In 2022, we proudly announced Marcus Daugherty as our inaugural Senior Vice President of Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Belonging (DEIB). Marcus' leadership has already been pivotal – and within this report, you'll hear directly from Marcus about his passion for the role and what this integral work means to him.

In addition, we marched resolutely ahead toward achieving our mission amidst the landscape of ever-evolving challenges – such as the alarming rise of fentanyl mixed with xylazine. These threats intensify the need for our vital work, making your support even more essential and appreciated.

Together, we have the power to overcome this crisis. The proof is in the impact we've made to date, and the achievements you'll read about here. Generous partners like you continue to enable us to grow our prevention, treatment, and family engagement offerings. These are the most crucial pillars in addressing our nation's addiction crisis head-on, and with our deep expertise and your support, we're making meaningful progress toward all of them day in and day out.

As we enter another year of dedicated service to the families at the heart of our mission, two things stand out: the real difference we're making and the immense gratitude we owe to our community of champions of our work, like you. While there's still much to accomplish, your generous contributions reinforce and ensure we can continue this important work. Your commitment has fueled the remarkable strides detailed in the following report – for which we are profoundly thankful.

With deep appreciation,

Creighton Drury,
CEO, Partnership to End Addiction

OUR COMMITMENT TO DEIB: A PERSONAL MESSAGE FROM MARCUS DAUGHERTY

As the inaugural Senior Vice President of Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Belonging (DEIB) for Partnership to End Addiction, it is with immense pride and a deep sense of responsibility that I address you – those who have made all of the Partnership's work possible over the last year.

As I continue on this journey, I am reflecting on the transformative power this role holds. That's because DEIB isn't just a set of values and principles; it's the heartbeat of an organization committed to serving every community with the empathy, care and understanding they need and deserve. And this position is not just a job; it's a deeply held promise to continue fostering and nurturing an environment where every voice is heard, and every life is valued.

With supporters like you by our side, the Partnership has prioritized this crucial DEIB work – which aligns directly with our mission. It is through this lens that we can begin to understand and address the complex needs of everyone we serve, ensuring that our educational services and offerings are accessible and relevant to those who need them and that we continue to be a place of deep understanding and a sanctuary for anyone affected by addiction.

This past year, our dedicated team has laid the foundation for the future of our DEIB efforts by aligning with our anti-racism task force to enhance our multicultural competencies. Looking ahead, we will deepen and expand these efforts with the goal of creating lasting change.

The strides we've made so far, and the goals we still aspire to achieve, are only made possible by your help and confidence in the work that we do. Through that commitment, we can pursue this critical work and ensure we can continue making a true difference in the lives of those impacted by addiction.

Thank you for your trust and belief in this vital work as we move ahead. Together, we will continue to make a significant impact.

Sincerely,

Marcus Daugherty,
Senior Vice President of DEIB, Partnership to End Addiction

OUR WORK WITH FAMILIES: INTRODUCTION

At the heart of our mission is our extensive work providing education, direct support and vital resources to the families who depend on us. We remain committed to amplifying their voices as we continue to work toward breaking the stigma and shame that so often accompany addiction.

In 2022, the Partnership made a significant impact on the lives of millions of people by providing essential information and help to parents and families.

We connected with over 20,000 parents and provided them with resources and support to help their loved ones.

We also reached a wide audience online, with nearly 1.7 million people visiting our website, drugfree.org, to access our comprehensive library of educational resources. In particular, our Spanish-language microsite saw over 176,000 pageviews.

We are proud of the progress we made in 2022 and are committed to continuing to make a difference in the lives of families and communities across the nation.

SPANISH-LANGUAGE RESOURCES: REACHING AT-RISK POPULATIONS WITH CRITICAL RESOURCES

Addiction doesn't discriminate, but unfortunately, services and outcomes too often do. That's why we're working to reach and serve families who reflect our nation's diversity, including strengthening and growing our services and resources for Spanish-speaking populations.

We've made significant inroads in our commitment to making our free, lifesaving resources more accessible. Thanks to generous support from The Mother Cabrini Health Foundation, we grew our Spanish-language content by 33% in 2022. We are pleased to share our substantial progress in the following areas:

- Online support community education: We host evidence-based trainings designed to empower parents to educate themselves about substance use, along with specific techniques to talk and work with their child. In 2022 alone, the Partnership translated and acculturated 20 lessons from English to Spanish, and provided Spanish-speaking families with the opportunity to learn more about several important issues through a series of Facebook Live events focused on topics like the stigma surrounding the disease of addiction faced by the Hispanic community, communications skills to help them address substance use and vaping information and education.
- Skill-building training: The Partnership team also produced and launched a series of eight short Spanish-language explainer videos on important topics families are facing.
- Community outreach and engagement: The team led several initiatives with the goal of improving community outreach and engagement, including a monthly e-newsletter, a quarterly meeting series for partners to facilitate collaboration and networking in the addiction field, participation in local health fairs to connect with communities on the ground and workshops at the National Latino Behavioral Health Conference.

NAVIGATING CANNABIS: UNDERSTANDING THE IMPACT OF MARIJUANA IN AN EVER-CHANGING LANDSCAPE

At a time when marijuana products – and discussions about them – are constantly changing, the Partnership is here to help parents and guardians understand and adapt to these shifting developments. The rise of stronger marijuana products, coupled with clever marketing trends aimed at teens and young adults, calls for a clear and informed approach.

The Partnership launched a new Marijuana Resource Center in October 2022, offering a comprehensive resource for concerned parents to learn more about the marijuana landscape, health problems linked to marijuana use, and what to say and do when it comes to preventing marijuana use or keeping experimentation from progressing.

This work was complemented by our special Parent Talk event, “Adolescents, Cannabis, and Mental Health,” hosted by parent advocates Christine Mack and Natasha Silver Bell, along with a panel of experts. Also held in October to coincide with the launch of the Marijuana Resource Center, the panel discussion explored the complex changes surrounding marijuana use, sharing the most up-to-date research, how to recognize risk factors and actions parents can take to ensure risk reduction and health promotion.

GRIEF SUPPORT: PROVIDING HOPE AND COMFORT TO THOSE WHO HAVE LOST A CHILD TO SUBSTANCE USE

Knowing that every grief journey is different, the Partnership holds space for parents and other caregivers who have lost children of any age to substance use. That’s why we launched our online grief resources hub highlighting recommended resources from our parent coaches who have lived the heartbreaking experience of losing a child to substance use.

Resources include support groups, videos and recommended reading. We continue to invite families to our monthly online support community meeting for parents and caregivers dealing with loss and grief.

THE PARTNERSHIP COLLABORATES WITH YOUTUBE ON AN EDUCATIONAL VIDEO SERIES

Partnership to End Addiction broadened its outreach and educational efforts through a dynamic 26-video series in collaboration with YouTube, offering families affected by substance use access to expert insights and practical resources.

The original videos spotlight messages of hope and point to credible information and resources for the millions of families struggling with substance use and addiction. New videos were released every two weeks throughout 2022 and featured a mix of families personally affected by substance use, along with experts and advocates who have dedicated their lives to helping others struggling with addiction.

The poignant content included powerful personal stories told by families who have supported a loved one with substance use disorder and later became parent coaches for the Partnership; conversations with experts about prevention, treatment, and family engagement; detailed panel discussions; and quick, fact-based information related to substance use and recovery.

SHEDDING LIGHT ON UNTOLD STORIES: A SPECIAL DOCUMENTARY ABOUT THE ADDICTION CRISIS IN AMERICA

In a powerful collaboration, the Partnership and Paramount presented “Untreated & Unheard: The Addiction Crisis in America,” a documentary that gives a much-needed voice to families impacted by addiction and shines a light on this national crisis. Originally premiering on Pluto TV, this Paramount-produced film offers a poignant look at the human stories behind addiction statistics.

The documentary was made possible through the active participation and leadership of Horizon Media. Bill Koenigsberg, CEO and founder of Horizon Media, who serves on the Partnership’s board of directors, enabled the production of this compelling documentary.

PODCAST INTERVIEW SERIES: “HEART OF THE MATTER” SERVES AS AN OUTLET FOR CANDID, PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT ADDICTION

Hosted by Emmy Award-winning journalist and Partnership to End Addiction board member Elizabeth Vargas, the Partnership distributed 17 new episodes of “Heart of the Matter,” a podcast interview series that gives guests the opportunity to share their personal stories about addiction. The show featured several high-profile guests in 2022, such as late actor Matthew Perry, Bravo’s “Below Deck” star Captain Lee Rosbach, actor Zachary Levi, National Institute on Drug Abuse’s Dr. Nora Volkow, NFL star Darren Waller, and actor Cameron Douglas. In 2022 the “Heart of the Matter” podcast saw over 176,000 downloads, a 31% increase from the previous year.

“

I think this is the greatest program, because at this point in time I really just want to talk to people who have gone through this and understand.

DIGITAL PEER COACHING: A GAME-CHANGER FOR FAMILIES FACING ADDICTION

In 2022, the Partnership announced our long-awaited digital peer coaching program, which allows us to reach parents where they are through a combination of live Zoom sessions and user-friendly, self-guided modules. Our initial pilot trainings have proven instrumental in fine-tuning the overall program as we continue to incorporate insightful feedback from these tests to improve future trainings and resources.

Parents who have participated in digital peer coaching sessions agree that the program has provided them with comfort and support from those with first-hand experience, bolstered by actionable plans for families in times of crisis:

“I absolutely love the parent coaches. I personally have spoken with two parents so far and they helped me tremendously,” said one participant. “I think this is the greatest program, because at this point in time I really just want to talk to people who have gone through this and understand.”

DEMYSTIFYING TREATMENT: INTRODUCING A FIRST-OF-ITS-KIND TREATMENT LOCATOR

Together with your support, we're confronting a substantial and persistent challenge in the realm of addiction recovery: the historically complex and daunting process of accessing and understanding appropriate treatment options.

For far too long, individuals struggling with addiction and their loved ones have faced confusion and roadblocks to accessing appropriate treatment and effective care. That's why – in collaboration with our friends at SAFE Project – we launched a first-of-its-kind national treatment locator in 2022.

Families seeking support and dedicated services can easily search the database for resources throughout the U.S. – both online and in person – customizing results based on type, demographics, ancillary services, and other preferences. The SAFE Family Support Locator currently features both traditional treatment services and more than 600 family support listings that span the country, with new organizations added monthly.

This initiative is part of our broader focus on removing barriers to accessing care and commitment to digital innovation in addressing the addiction crisis more effectively.

OUR WORK WITH PROFESSIONALS: RESEARCH AND TRAINING

ADVANCING ADOLESCENT RECOVERY IN 2022: YEAR OF IMPACT AND INNOVATION FOR FACTS INITIATIVE

The Partnership's Family and Adolescent Clinical Technology & Science (FACTS) team, under the expert guidance of Aaron Hogue, Ph.D., Senior Vice President, Research and Clinical Science/FACTS, completed the Treating Teens research study.

This ambitious multi-year project evaluated an innovative training approach for clinicians addressing substance use and behavioral problems in youth. Collaborating with seven clinics, the program successfully equipped 56 therapists with skills in Family Therapy and Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, recognized as the leading evidence-based methods for treating adolescent substance use.

Additionally, the FACTS team initiated a groundbreaking pilot trial protocol within our Family Involvement in Recovery Support and Treatment Research Network, tailored to treat and support youth grappling with opioid addiction. This trial featured in-depth interviews with youth and their caregivers and provided continual training and consultation to the dedicated clinicians involved in their care.

The year was accentuated by noteworthy academic contributions from the FACTS team, who published five peer-reviewed journal articles, including a comprehensive review summarizing a decade's worth of research on family therapy's role in substance use disorder treatment.

EMPOWERING CLINICIANS NATIONWIDE: THE JAIME INCLÁN CLINICAL TRAINING ACADEMY'S LEAP TO ACCESSIBILITY

Parallel to our FACTS research accomplishments, our Jaime Inclán Clinical Training Academy achieved a milestone by translating our research-backed, self-paced online training programs into consumer-ready formats.

After five years of rigorous testing and refinement in research environments, these trainings are set to extend their reach, offering valuable resources to clinicians nationwide. These advancements reflect the Partnership's unwavering commitment to enhancing the recovery journey for families and adolescents facing addiction.

The year was accentuated by noteworthy academic contributions from the FACTS team, who published five peer-reviewed journal articles, including a comprehensive review summarizing a decade's worth of research on family therapy's role in substance use disorder treatment.

EQUIPPING THE FIELD: CRITICAL TOOLS AND RESOURCES FOR PROFESSIONALS

In the spirit of fostering a safer future for our youth, Linda Richter, Ph.D., Senior Vice President of Prevention Research and Analysis, made substantial contributions to our Raising Resilient Kids initiative throughout the year.

Her efforts were complemented by her collaboration with the Partnership's Senior Research Associate, Robyn Oster, in authoring a pivotal commentary in the Journal of Adolescent Health. They addressed the central issue of how media portrayals of research findings can be misleading and threaten youth health by skewing public perception and resource allocation, underscoring the importance of accurate reporting and informed discourse on matters of public health.

SPOTLIGHTING PREVENTION

Through a series of thought-provoking articles published in 2022, Richter also worked to address critical prevention topics, such as extending marijuana use prevention beyond adolescence, understanding the pandemic’s impact on youth substance use risk, advocating for rigorous marijuana packaging laws to safeguard young children, and promoting a holistic approach to substance use prevention that tackles issues such as food insecurity.

Additionally, Richter highlighted the strategic use of opioid settlement funds to bolster prevention efforts, emphasizing the importance of a preemptive stance against substance use.

FAMILY ADVOCATES TAKE ACTION

Parallel to these key educational efforts, our network of family advocates, representing all 50 states, played a pivotal role in advocating for meaningful legislative progress. Their heartfelt letters to Congress that share their personal stories contributed to successfully passing the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2023.

This comprehensive spending bill, signed into law in December 2022, is a legislative triumph that promises to broaden access to addiction treatment medications, mandate addiction training for prescribers and strengthen the behavioral health workforce. This law marks a compelling victory for our mission and exemplifies the power of community engagement in shaping policies to support those impacted by addiction.

In 2022, Richter was joined by Lindsey Vuolo, J.D., M.P.H, Vice President for Health Law and Policy, and Tamar Mendelson, Ph.D., of the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health to co-author an article for Health Affairs Forefront on how to invest opioid settlement and federal funding to prevent substance use and promote youth mental health.

RETHINKING SUBSTANCE USE PREVENTION: AN EARLIER AND BROADER APPROACH

In 2022, the Partnership published “Rethinking Substance Use Prevention: An Earlier and Broader Approach,” making the case for integrating what is known from the fields of early childhood and healthy youth development into substance use prevention.

Accompanying the report, the Substance Use Prevention Agenda presented priorities essential for transforming the way our nation addresses prevention.
